Customer Reviews

Wow, the full story on iconic firearms designer Gordon Ingram and his inventive genius, and for the first time it's all told in this tremendous book by two true firearms' historians. Read and see all details of Ingram's myriad and revolutionary designs. It's all here, starting even before his fabled Model 6, to the M9, M10, M11, his carbine, his shotguns, pistols, carbines, assault rifles, brief case guns, MAC, RPB and SWD. It's all here ...the travels, the travails, the unique designs, the Sionics and the WerBell suppressors. Ahh, yes, Mitch WerBell and his world scope intrigue, plus all the other characters and deals from that quiet, spooky world of the 1960s through the 1990s...all within 520 pages loaded with rare photos. This is one big, full, great book. Too many biographies tempt the reader with literary sweetener in which the story line is that all's well with their principal and that there is never a fault or negative. Life is not all glitter and glitz in anyone's world and this was especially and sadly true with Gordon Ingram's professional life long goals. His biography is wrought with honesty. Who better to team this book than Don Thomas, who was Gordon Ingram's close friend and confidant for many years, and also the official historian for the Mitch WerBell/Sionics/Military Armament Corporation complex that moved Mr. Ingram's genius into the Big Leagues of firearms design. Don, whom I have been honored to have as a friend and professional associate for 40+ years now, was joined by another experienced and top drawer researcher and writer in Frank Iannamico. In THE MAC MAN, Don and Frank tell it truly like it was with all the wants, wealth and warts presented.
